Battlefields of Change
NRHC 2015 Conference Statement

The Civil War was the bloodiest conflict in American history. In the space of a few short years, more than 600,000 people were killed, and millions were left injured. One of the most notable and influential battles in the war took place in and around Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, between July 1 and 3, 1863. The battle was largely accidental, yet it has become steeped in American mythology.

At issue in this battle, and indeed in this war, was the future of the United States – still a young country coming to terms with its revolutionary origins and with the meaning of the ideas and ideals upon which it had been founded, particularly the belief that “all men are created equal” as held by the Federalists and disputed by the Confederacy. The subject of slavery and what it meant to be human became a heated topic that ran like a wildfire through the halls of Washington, the taverns of the young republic, supper tables and church halls. No one was untouched by slavery.

Today, more than 150 years after this historic and devastating battle, the name Gettysburg is associated almost inextricably in the minds of Americans with the battlefields now turned into sacred ground, as well as with Abraham Lincoln’s famous address and with the key achievements of his presidency, including the Emancipation Proclamation (January 1, 1863), his call for “a new birth of freedom” and his assertion that what was at stake in this conflict was the very survival of democracy in the republic.

Gettysburg, then, was a battlefield on which the direction and nature of the nation was shaped and determined in a fundamental way. This was a battlefield of transformation in the most profound sense. Lincoln’s call to arms, as manifested through his “Gettysburg Address,” echoes through time, demanding that later generations never forget those who died on the bloody fields of Gettysburg during those hot days in early July.

This conference calls us to consider the battlefield of Gettysburg and to reflect on its transformational impact in the broadest terms. Weaponry and warfare were forever changed in the course of the Civil War, but so did the words and arguments made by our leaders. Moreover, some of the innovative technologies that it helped engender – in communications, medicine, photography, transportation, and so on – likewise changed the social and political fabric of the nation and helped to alter the way in which the United States came to define itself in art, citizenship, literature, poetry, and religion. The Civil War generally, and Gettysburg in particular, changed everything utterly and irrevocably.

This conference also calls us to consider other battlefields that have transformed the world in which we live – be they physical battlefields like Gettysburg or other fields of battle, where ideas and ideals have come into conflict and where the outcomes have been consequential in the deepest and most genuine sense. Whether it’s the battlefields on which ethical problems of stem cell research are fought, the debates over undocumented immigrants, the war on terror, civil liberties, censorship, or race, which in the wake of Ferguson has shown us that it is still a battle being fought in the twenty-first century, the battles continue.

Therefore, we invite you to explore pivotal occasions of change and transformation and to reflect on the art, business, culture, politics, science or technology that have or may yet prompt change – as well as to reflect on what the implications of such change have been or may be in the future.

Let the conversation begin!

Dear NRHC members and friends,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2015 NRHC annual conference April 9-12 at the Wyndham Gettysburg.

Our selected theme is “Battlefields of Change,” and for the next several days we’ll look back at the bloodiest conflict in American history at the site of one of the most notable and influential battles in the Civil War. We will reflect on that battlefield and its transformational impact on the country then and compare it to the battlefields we face today, not only in military terms but also in other fields of battle where ideas and ideals have come into conflict and where the outcomes have been consequential in the deepest and most genuine sense.

I hope you also take the opportunity during this conference to meet, talk with and exchange ideas with many of your fellow Honors Program directors, faculty, staff and students. I have learned so much from attending regional and national honors conferences the past five years. And I have made so many friends through them, too. May you all have that same experience!

The executive board welcomes anyone who would like to join our group and accept an office as well as the opportunity to become more involved in our regional organization. We pride ourselves on being one of our national organization’s most active groups. With your help we can continue that claim and improve. We’ll talk more about this at our business meeting.

Best wishes for a wonderful conference,
Helen Fallon
NRHC Board President

Debra Sandoe McCauslin
Gettysburg Place as Text Keynote Speaker

Historian and author Debra Sandoe McCauslin has made presentations to historical societies and Civil War roundtables throughout the Gettysburg region. Among her publications is “Reconstructing the Past: Puzzle of a Lost Community,” which traces the history of the residents of Yellow Hill. “Black Settlement on Yellow Hill,” co-authored with Alisha Sanders, appeared in Pennsylvania Heritage magazine. Her work has also been published by the Adams County Historical Society, the Gettysburg Times, and Gettysburg Experience magazine.

She produced the documentary “Adams County USA,” seen on local PBS stations. A descendant of George Washington Sandoe, first soldier to fall at the Battle of Gettysburg, Debra provided research for the story of his life, written by T. W. Burger, and teaches community education courses at Harrisburg Area Community College’s Gettysburg Campus.

A long-standing advocate for bringing to light the roles of African Americans and women in Gettysburg, she has served for the last seven years as an event organizer for the U. S. Colored Troops Graveside Salute, National Cemetery, Gettysburg, Pa., been an advocate for the Historic Gettysburg–Adams County (HGAC) effort to include four Adams County sites in the National Park Service Underground Railroad Network to Freedom, a tour guide for The Underground Railroad in Adams County, and a sponsor and event organizer for the re-enactment of the 1845 kidnapping of Kitty Payne and her family, and placement of wayside marker commemorating their kidnapping in Bendersville, Pa.

Place as Text

This year’s Place as Text, a hallmark of honors conferences, regionally and nationally, proves especially fruitful and poignant in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Gettysburg was at the center of the Civil War and very much a turning point. Over the course of more than four years, the American Civil War shook the nation to its core, leaving more casualties than all other American wars combined, with over 51,000 soldiers losing their lives in the three-day battle that took place in Gettysburg July 1-3, 1863, alone. The battle set the stage for Lincoln’s famous Gettysburg Address.

During your exploration of this place, we ask that you consider the various battles waged in Gettysburg, not only the epic battle at Gettysburg, but also the other acts of heroism and sacrifice by the citizens of Gettysburg and surrounding areas. It is here that the nation recommitted itself to the 1776 Declaration of Independence and its ideals of equality and liberty. The area lends itself to exploration of the various educational, cultural, social, political, literary and scientific advancements that rose from the sacrifices of soldiers, citizens of Gettysburg and the nation as a whole.

Place as Text Strands

Strand #1: The Battlefields

Beginning at the Gettysburg National Military Park Museum and Visitor Center, you will have the opportunity to view artifacts, interactive displays, including the film “A New Birth of Freedom” narrated by Morgan Freeman, and the Gettysburg Cyclorama. These exhibits will help orient you to the impact of the battle and explain its context within the Civil War and its enduing relevance. From here, you may choose from several trails, including the cemetery ridge trail or the national cemetery trail, exploring both the North and South’s positions during the battle, field hospitals, the unique landscape of the fields and the role technology played.

Strand #2: Downtown Gettysburg

You will begin at the Historic Gettysburg Train station where Lincoln arrived by train on November 18, 1863, for the dedication of the National Cemetery. From here, you have the opportunity to explore downtown Gettysburg and its rich history, including the Civil War Museum at Gettysburg College, the David Wills House, the Dobbin House Tavern and Gettysburg’s newest museum, the Gettysburg Seminary Ridge Museum.

Strand #3: Eisenhower National Historic Site

Participants will take a shuttle from the Gettysburg National Military Park Visitor Center and travel to the Eisenhower National Historic Site, which is adjacent to the battlefield. President Eisenhower’s home and farm served as a weekend retreat and a meeting place for world leaders. With its peaceful setting and view of South Mountain, it was a much needed respite from Washington and a backdrop for efforts to reduce Cold War tensions.

Strand #4: Town of Emmitsburg: National Shrine of Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton

You will board a bus or trolley and travel to Emmitsburg, about 14 miles south of Gettysburg, to the religious and historic site honoring the life of Mary Seton, the first U.S.-born saint. You will explore the majestic Basilica with stained glass windows, mosaics and marble, Mother Seton’s cemetery, and have a chance to hike the Indian Lookout Walk, a 2.5 mile hike that leads to the position where the North observed the Battle of Gettysburg.

Strand #5: Art/History: Making Art Inspired from History

This Place as Text offering is a day-long research and creative workshop. Students and faculty will explore the town and battlefields of Gettysburg in search of artistic inspiration while also considering the implications and responsibilities of using historical material to create art. Using documents, artifacts and other remains from the Gettysburg area, each student will create a work of visual art, writing or performance.

Strand #6: Community Service

Details on this year’s community service project will be announced at the conference.

Dr. William Blair
Gettysburg Banquet Keynote Speaker

Dr. William Blair is Liberal Arts Research Professor of U.S. History at Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pa., Director of the Richards Civil War Era Center, and editor of “The Journal of the Civil War Era.” He also edits “The Brose Lecture Series” with the University of North Carolina Press. His books include “With Malice Toward Some: Treason in the Civil War Era” (2014), which was a finalist for this year’s Lincoln Prize; “Virginia’s Private War: Feeding Body and Soul in the Confederacy, 1861-1865” (1998), and “Cities of the Dead: Contesting the Memory of the Civil War in the South, 1865-1914” (2004). He serves as a Distinguished Lecturer for the Organization of American Historians.

9:30 p.m.-midnight

Student Art Show Reveal and Open Mic – Presidential Ballroom

Have a special talent for singing or dancing? Have you written a poem and want to shout it to the world – or rather a room full of honors students? Do you not and just want to watch other talented honors students? Sign up for open-mic night! But if you want to just be a friendly spectator, please join us for this fun and popular student activity.
