Part 2

I recommend you secure any loose jewelry
As you lean over the rail at this world-famous brewery.
Deep underground lies a veritable goldmine -
A three-thousand two-hundred foot beer pipeline!
But we've no time for hoppy tomfoolery.

This challenge allows no room for compromisin'
So feast your eyes out toward the horizon.
I can't blame you for heartily opinin'
The medieval marvels splittin' the skyline.
We'll get there, but not through the pipeline, Poseidon!

In this age of instantaneous gratification,
Go the cobblestones streets you may experience desensitization.
My advice, though, is resolute -
Take the scenic route
Through this city free from industrialization!

About the leftmost cathedral you'll research some facts
For the other, our lady's church you'll need to look past.
Though you can't see it, nevertheless
It's something each of us does possess -
But only the crazies' are full of bats!

Both structures once burned, can you imagine?
So long ago it's hard to even fathom
Though they went up in flames,
And who knows what's to blame,
In Medieval times you can't rule out dragons.

Pull out your abacus, sit down, and appraise
The number of years between each building's first blaze.
If you climb about two steps for each trip around the sun
Beginning at the square below the octagon,
Out the embrasure, from what room would you gaze?
